Music and Electrical Engineering Bootcamp

Palma Catravas, John Cox, Dianne McMullen, Union College

Come experience a real world example of how a collaboration between Music and Electrical Engineering provides an interdisciplinary experience for students. Participate in singing and recording a well-known folk melody with Union's Camerata Singers and a music history class in several locations on campus and then come back to listen and analyze those sound recordings with students taking a course in digital signal processing. Participants will leave with an understanding of how these two disciplines can be integrated to provide students experiences from two very different perspectives.
